I would like to, for example, have an email address in a string variable, but if I have a string with the value "Å" (A in unicode, with a simple minus) it won't work. I have tried the following, but it doesn't work, no matter if I do something like: `encoding.defaultcodepage = "1257";` or `charCodes.UnicodeEncoding.GetChars("Ã[?");` How would I go about this? Also I'm testing the code on Windows XP. A: One way would be to use Unicode: `encoding.defaultcodepage = Encoding.Unicode;` You can even use a different code page for your local machine so you don't have to worry about that. A: It's simply because your default code page is not Unicode, even if you change it. The simplest solution would be to do the following: `Encoding.GetEncoding(1257);` This will return an instance of `Encoding` which is Unicode. Ask HN: good candidates for a more opinionated social media marketing startup? - kapkapkap I am lead developer at a social media marketing startup (a small company, with a medium sized team size (8-16) and we need to be mobile). The problem we are solving is very simple, on one end we aggregate social media buzz for companies, on the other we provide a web dashboard for marketers to interact with their fans, engage with their own content and update live data for their social media needs. We did this previously and now we are looking for a VC to take us to the next level. The problem is that we are not really looking for a client but more like a "customer". We are not looking for clients but for people who need tools like what we are making. So I am looking for people who are in this kind of space or have an opinion on how others companies should be doing it. Any suggestions? ===== ig1 ( characteristics:El Ministerio de Defensa de Venezuela emitió una versión revisada del código de navegación por satélite que se actualiza desde hace dos años, lo que ha hecho difícil traducirlo a un sitio (a menos que haya una técnica que le permita hacerlo en tiempo récord). Por ejemplo, el navegador de Google no puede traducirlo.

Descubriremos, por un lado, que la versión que circula por satélite es la versión 4.1 y por el otro el que está en la red física es la versión 3.0. El código que maneja la información que la ciencia malvada nos da sobre la situación económica de Venezuela con las reservas del petróleo y la exportación de gases, es una palabra por cada 10 en nombre de la mariguana, lo que la sencilla traducción debería haber hecho deja de lado los fragmentos como "vamos a generar una cantidad de electricidad de nuevo más adecuada a la demanda actual", lo que implicaría la creación de nuevas plantas fábricas. Al cambiar el nombre, el código ya no se traduciría a ningún navegador y deberíamos descubrir que el nuevo documento todavía está a punto de ser descargado en la red. Para ponerte a cada 10 la pizarra de la economía venezolana, lo que en según el gobierno más estricto del mundo se podría traducir sería: Electrica de petróleo de más: 23.000 kWh
