A: This line in the web.config is what's causing the issue: S:\NITRO\HASHED\NITRO.HASHED This looks like the default path for the hash file. This means that it's being generated for other formats like PDF, DOC, etc. that don't require a hash. If you need the hash for other file types, just update the defaultDocument setting for those file formats. Q: Insert extra column into bq insert, using bq CLI How to insert extra column in bq insert? Without bq cli, I can do it by adding a json file in the root path and adding extra column with .add column. I need to do it in bq cli. A: This is not currently supported with bq. You'll have to use the API (the "bq" command is a wrapper for the API). See for more info.
