Nx Os Emulator Titanium 5.1(2) Vmware Image

This is not a good solution, as you'll end up with a 1.5 TB virtual machine. Finally, note that there's not much you can do about the ~2 GB of empty space left after you've uncompressed the image. If you don't want to waste space just about anything will do, even 10x floppier or a headless computer you've bought on eBay. A: 1 - First, you need a VMware image of version 5.1.2 or greater. You can use anything to back that up and restore it should you need to. As @Cerberus pointed out, if you don't back it up, then you're left with a virtual machine that's about 2 GB in size. 2 - Next, you need to download the following file, place it on a workstation's hard drive, and restore it from there. 3 - Next, launch a command prompt (e.g. windows "cmd" shell) on your workstation and run the following command: C:\Titanium5.1.2 exus\bin\install.bat 4 - This will write out the Titanium image to your workstation's hard drive. 5 - Finally, go to the directory where you saved the Titanium file and copy the file to "C:\Program Files\Titanium" by running this command: C:\Program Files\Titanium>xcopy /s /y "C:\NX-Titanium-5.1.2-build-number" "C:\Program Files\Titanium" Note: as of this posting, it looks like xcopy /s /y /v /c is now required for correct operation. If you're going to use a lot of these Titanium images (to simulate a large environment) I suggest putting the VMware image into a compressed file and backing that up.

Otherwise, I'd recommend just sticking with something like VirtualBox. I hope this helps. ## Nx Os Emulator Titanium 5.1(2) Vmware Image

And I did the same upgrade in Vmware workstation following this : Installing Cisco Nexus Operating System Nx Os Emulator Titanium 5.1(2) Vmware Image But I can not start the virtual machine. VMware has given me this error :

`vmware.cisco.com/cvm/vmdk/host/image (0x0)` already exists After long time searching about this error, I found that this could be a problem of configuration files. When I try to create a new virtual machine, VMware Workstation 8 does not create a new virtual machine when I start the VM (I can see the template, but it does not seem to do anything). When I try to create a new virtual machine, VMware Workstation 8 does not create a new virtual machine when I start the VM (I can see the template, but it does not seem to do anything). After days searching about this error, I found this post, and I did what this post suggested: So I changed the `/etc/vmware/config-machine.xml` into this : To my surprise, it worked. Can anybody tell me why did it work and how can I use this VMware configuration file in VMware workstation 8? A: So, it did not work for me. But I tried another solution, which is actually very easy to do. I downloaded Nexus OS from the first link (version 3.0.3) because it was the only one who supported vSphere. I created a new virtual machine with the new ISO image by selecting "Create Virtual Machine...". Then I installed the ISO. Then I created a new virtual machine with VMware Workstation 8 and selected "Create Virtual Machine...". Then I entered the name of the VM and the disk size. I did not choose an OS. I tried to switch network configuration. I could not do it. But I tried to do it, just to see. Then I tried to connect to my network. After a long time, I found that my network was not working. So I turned it off and on again, and I tried to connect again. Finally, I was able to use it. Why it worked? I don't know, but this solution is really easy to use. It is fast, too. This solution cannot be compared with the 6d1f23a050
