Extrathymic formation of T cells. Recent studies of thymic development in mouse models, which have demonstrated that earlier stages of thymic development might be dispensable, have extended our knowledge of the extrathymic T cell development pathway. In a mouse model bearing a non-functional Rag1 gene, a significant proportion of the T cells that develop extrathymically bear an immature phenotype. Furthermore, genes associated with T cell differentiation are expressed in these T cells. These observations suggest that cells that express T cell markers without TCRs could be generated extrathymically. Q: adding to the end of a jquery selector string removes the selector I am using jquery 1.7.1 I have a selector and when I append a string to it to make a dynamic one it removes the from the end of the selector.
